

TABLE TEAM 1

Clue 1:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 14th Amendment to freedom of contract to exploit workers and poor.

Clue 2:

Court grants corporations and other artificial persons a protected right under 1st Amendment to unlimited spending in elections.

TABLE TEAM 2

Clue 1:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 1st Amendment to fair payment for obeying laws that might decrease their future profits.

Clue 2:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 1st Amendment not to speak; for example, to not truthfully label food products.

TABLE TEAM 3

Clue 1:

Court decides unofficially that corporations as artificial persons have equal protection of laws with natural persons. This becomes official law.

Clue 2:

Court grants wealthy individuals a protected right under 1st Amendment to spend unlimited money on political campaigns, parties, and Super PACs.

TABLE TEAM 4

Clue 1:

Court creates a new actor in Constitution and limits state control of corporate charters.

Clue 2:

Court extends a corporation's protected right not to speak to commercial and political speech, to facts and opinions. This eliminates truth in ads and campaigns.

TABLE TEAM 5

Clue 1:

Court rules that political speech equals money; that spending on political campaigns is protected speech under 1st Amendment. Any limits are unconstitutional.

Clue 2:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 1st Amendment to unlimited giving to Super PACs without disclosing donor names.

TABLE TEAM 6

Clue 1:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 4th Amendment to freedom from unreasonable search and seizures. Ruling limits government's ability to enforce laws.

Clue 2:

Court grants corporations a protected right under 1st Amendment to advertise on citizen initiatives.